Dear Karen,

I have recently discovered that I received a Social Insurance Number (SIN) through a fraudulent process. This fraud was not committed by me but, by the education system which stated that in having a SIN number, there were a number of benefits. Having used of this number in the past I have come to a realization that there or no benefits which I truly need or require by using the SIN assigned to me.

Now I will not press any charges resulting from the fraud, but I am returning and will no longer use the SIN assigned to me.

Please inform all departments that use the SIN assigned to me that if they wish to do business with me, they may negotiate with me, but they must understand that they may not in any manner interfere with any of my INHERENT RIGHTS. I have enclosed a copy of my INHERENT RIGHTS as well as a FEE SCHEDULE for violation of those rights.

I thank you for your time and attention to this matter. Govern yourself accordingly.
